[redacted] political indoctrination of the personnel of the brigade included a program on the organization of new farms by the Polish Government. The farms were to be handed over to Polish soldiers after completion of their term of service. EW was voluntarily asked for allotment of a farm were to be discharged at an earlier date. The program, however, could not be carried through. Therefore, the main political department of the Polish Army requested that another farming propaganda was to be started later. Three or four volunteer farmers were observed in the brigade.

although it was generally believed that the Polish Government would force the new soldier farmers to become members of kolkhozes within a short period, or that the new farm would be confiscated.

[REDACTED] Comment. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] The designation as brigade and the rather small strength are indicative of a coastal artillery unit,
